New Mural Shines Light on Province’s Neurodivergent Students

This Back-to-School Season, LDS - Learn. Develop. Succeed. launches the #ProudMinds movement to reduce stigma and celebrate the unique strengths of every learner.

Vancouver, BC — August 28 – Back-to-school should be a season of excitement, but for many families it brings stress and worry—especially for neurodivergent students. Research shows that at least 40% of children with ADHD or autism also experience anxiety disorders, leaving many feeling isolated and unable to “measure up.”

This fall, LDS - Learn. Develop. Succeed. is determined to flip that narrative. Through its #ProudMinds movement, the charity is tackling stigma head-on and celebrating the brilliance, resilience, and unique strengths of neurodivergent youth.

With the support of a generous donor family, LDS - Learn. Develop. Succeed. is unveiling Ascend, a bold and vibrant mural by internationally renowned artist Carson Ting. Located at the bustling corner of Rupert and Broadway, the mural is a powerful symbol of growth, learning, and the transformative impact of encouragement and support.

You are invited to celebrate #ProudMinds and uplift the contributions of neurodivergent students in our schools and communities. Visit idsociety.ca/proudminds to share one thing you love about how your brain works and enter to win exciting prizes.

Rachel S. Forbes, Executive Director, LDS - Learn. Develop. Succeed.

“At LDS – Learn. Develop. Succeed., we believe every neurodivergent child, youth, and adult has unique strengths to celebrate. This new mural, Ascend, is a vibrant expression of that vision—symbolizing growth, confidence, and the empowerment that comes from being proudly yourself. Thanks to our community and the generosity of a donor family, we invite you to help us build more #ProudMinds, together.”

Carson Ting, Artist, Chairman Ting

“Ascend is a celebration of growth, learning, and the quiet power of support. I’m proud to partner with LDS - Learn. Develop. Succeed. to create this visual metaphor for resilience,
